4. Briefly, indicate your other experiences, training, or employment that you feel may be relevant.

5. Finally, please write a one-page (typed or handwritten) response to each of the two following queries:

- Stephen North suggests that a goal of teaching college writing should be to make better writers not simply to make better writing. Explain what this mean to you and how it might apply to your work at the Writing Center.
- Describe your strengths and weaknesses as a writer, including but not limited to your understanding of grammar and Standard Written English conventions.

Submit: (1) this form, with responses to #5a and #5b; (2) letter indicating preferred number of hours (up to 15) and availability schedule (3) resume with names of three references; (4) writing sample, such as a paper for one of your college classes, to: Dr. MaryAnn K. Crawford, Director, Writing Center, Anspach 003, 989-774-1228 (or 774-3275) crawf1ma@mail.cmich.edu

Note: Intensive initial training along with ongoing training meeting participation is required.

CMU provides students with disabilities reasonable accommodation to participate in educational programs, activities or services. For those with disabilities requiring accommodations to meet course and work requirements should first register with the office of Student Disability Services (Park Library, 517-774-3018, TDD #2568) before talking to the Director.
