Faculty Development 4 Medical Educators (FD4ME) is an on-line faculty development and continuing education program located at fd4me.osu.edu. FD4ME is a series of peer reviewed, interactive, e-learning modules devoted to improving the knowledge, attitudes and skills of medical and other allied health faculty in the important domains of teaching, professionalism and leadership.

Below are short descriptions of some modules offered on the FD4ME program:

Feedback and Evaluation in Clinical

Teaching: Basic Concepts

▶ 0.5 continuing education credit hours

In this module you will have an opportunity to learn about the key elements of effective feedback, models for feedback and the creation of an action plan, as well as strategies for evaluation that will be helpful to residents and fellows teaching in various clinical environments.

Teaching Students in the Ambulatory Setting

I: Getting Started

▶ 0.5 continuing education credit hours

This module addresses curriculum goals, time management tips, student feedback strategies, terminology/acronyms from the student curriculum, and much more.

Teaching Students in the Ambulatory Setting

II: Patient Care Skills

▶ 0.25 continuing education credit hours

This module focuses on methods of explicitly coaching students in the essential clinical skills necessary for the independent practice of medicine.

Teaching Students in the Ambulatory Setting

III: Evaluation and Feedback

▶ 0.25 continuing education credit hours

In this final module, we focus on the principles of evaluation, feedback and coaching medical students.
