Our 101st Performance Season

Becoming a member of the Chippewa Marching Band for 2023

Who May Audition?

Any CMU student may audition to become a member of the Chippewa Marching Band. All incoming freshmen and transfer students who are not Music Majors may schedule an audition in the spring. Typically, once a student has been accepted to the marching band, they will not be required to audition in subsequent years.

Arranging for an Audition

Auditions take place in conjunction with early Student Orientation sessions. Once accepted to the University, students will receive an information packet from the Orientation office. Be sure to indicate your desire to audition by checking the options available on the Orientation web site:

https://www.cmich.edu/ess/oss/New_Student_Orientation/Pages/default.aspx

Auditions may be played in person or by submitting a video. On-campus audition dates are: June 6, 7, 8, 12, and 13. If possible, we'd like all students auditioning for the Drum Line to be here on June 6.

Our intention is for students to audition the day before their orientation session. So, if your orientation is on June 7, we'd like you to audition on June 6 – if possible. You may also audition at the end of your orientation day, though spots are limited. We'll work with you to avoid multiple long-distance trips to campus. Whether you choose to audition in person or on video, we ask that you let us know when you're coming for orientation so we can get you fitted for your uniform while you're here! Send inquiries about live audition scheduling to Dr. Batcheller using this form: <https://forms.gle/dwoDQSuU65SB72KP9>

Packets with audition materials and instructions have been prepared for all sections. Demonstration videos are available, as well.

Preparing for the Audition

Students will be asked to demonstrate the best of their training. The emphasis in these auditions is on determining your skill level and your experience. There will be some physical movement in the audition so take time to warm up and dress to be comfortable. Winds and percussion will be asked to mark time while playing during a portion of the session (low impact mark time only: heels rise and fall, toes remain on the ground) to determine agility and coordination.

You may prepare your audition video using your phone, tablet, or any device that will allow you to record and transfer a video via the internet. We ask that you submit your video through YouTube because it's among the easiest and most secure methods available. If you don't already have a YouTube account, you can establish one by following the instructions at YouTube Help.

Submitting Your Audition Video

Once you've completed your audition, submit it using our online form at: <https://forms.office.com/r/uMvf9kaihe>

Audition videos are due no later than June 13 by 11:59 pm for full consideration.

Pre-season Rehearsals

New Woodwinds and Brass will report for pre-season rehearsals on Sunday, August 20, at 10:00 am.

Once selected, members of the drum line will be asked to come to campus August 3-5 for equipment fittings, basics instruction, and to make final part adjustments. The line will report for pre-season rehearsals on Saturday morning, August 19.

Once selected, members of the color guard will be asked to join us for a mini-camp August 3-5, and to move to campus in time for our pre-season rehearsal camp, which begins on August 19.

Information for Music Majors

Incoming Music Majors who have passed their entrance audition for School of Music faculty may play their primary instrument in the marching band without further audition.

All percussion majors must audition for placement in the field battery.

All incoming freshmen and transfer students who wish to participate in the color guard must audition.

Music majors who wish to play an instrument other than their major instrument may need to audition to do so. Contact Dr. Batcheller for additional information.

More Information

This and other information related to the Hundred-First Season of the Chippewa Marching Band is available at our web site, which will be updated as the season approaches. We look forward to meeting you and welcoming you to CMU.
